New textile sauna world

The Interalpen-Hotel Tyrol has expanded its spa and wellness facilities

5,500 square metres of pure well-being awaits guests at the 5-star superior Interalpen-Hotel Tyrol from this month with the completion of a new, 230 square metre 'textile' sauna world. With direct access to the pool, the new textile zone, which includes a choice of sauna cabins as well as an ice fountain, foot baths and spacious showers, is perfect for guests who prefer to sauna in swimwear or relax with the whole family.

The new textile sauna which opens at the Interalpen-Hotel Tyrol at the beginning of May covers 230 square metres and offers a choice of four different saunas: along with an infrared saltwater cabin with four individual loungers, guests can also enjoy a bio sauna, a steam bath and a Finnish sauna. In keeping with the pool area, the textile sauna is also finished with organic elements such as wood and stone and the overall effect is an oasis of rest and relaxation. Individual design elements and details, such as the starlit sky and a wall of natural Austrian stone in the Finnish sauna, or a heated rock which forms a natural day bed in the relaxation area, give the textile sauna world its own unique style. To keep guests refreshed, there's an ice fountain, foot baths, several showers and a drinking fountain.

The new textile sauna world complements and expands the Interalpen-Hotel Tyrol's already comprehensive wellness facility, where relaxation seekers enjoy the 50 metre long indoor pool, a heated outdoor pool with magnificent views of the surrounding mountain peaks, a Tyrolean sauna village and a 10,000 square metre spa garden with secluded nooks and quiet corners.
